APPENDIX NOTE IV. and very zealous for the promotion of the christian religion, to which Mr. Carlyle says he directed all his strength when strength and authority were lent him, to establishing it in Norway and suppressing and abolishing Vikingism there; both of which objects and their respective worth and unworth he must himself have long known too well. The nominal christianity of that kingdom wanted life and reality under the successors of Olaf Tryggesesen, and many of the Bonders or peasant proprietors had relapsed into the old idolatry. This King Olaf, the Saint as he was afterwards called, resolved to restore the true religion, and he consistently administered the laws with strict justice, ever maintaining the right, and punishing violence, robbery, and oppression. Snorro gives a vivid picture of a popular assembly, or Thing by which we are reminded of Elijah and the Priests of Baal at Mount Carmel. Gudbrand, leader of the Bonders, said that the God of the christians could not be seen like Thor, and that if Thor was brought from his temple the christians would melt before him. The Bonders shouted yea. The Thing was to be held in a great field on the morrow, and the King commanded Kolbiorn the Strong to be near him, duly instructed. The hideous image of Thor was brought out and placed near the Bonders, the King and his people being on the other side. The idol was hollow and was fed with daily...
