What beginning have we made? Although we have not reached the maximum of recent years, if we fairly consider the circumstances of the year, we may compare it with our Associations infancy, or any of its best years; and the record is one that should give us courage to go forward. Within the memory of the present generation, there has been no period of pecuniary depression so general and severe. Numerous failures in financial affairs have been but an index of a commercial stagnation, widespread and universal, which has at once multiplied the burdens and calls of charity, and abridged the resources of generosity. To many of our churches, as to individuals, it has brought settlement of accounts, bringing home debts too freely contracted in recent years of excited hope and expectation of ever-increasing prosperity. Many of...
